

What is the Goal?

My goal is very simple.

Life is Outside Your Window

In life, it seems that the ultimate sense of freedom is found in the great outdoors. My goal is to remain in a state of movement and to stay outdoors as much as humanly possible. This focus allows me to put everything else into place and gives me purpose.

Create Beautiful Art

It is my belief that the world lacks beauty in general. The least I can do is contribute my gift to the world through the medium of photography.

Produce, Don't Consume

The ultimate goal is to remain in a state of production. Whether I'm making photographs, videos, blog posts—I look forward to staying in the state of production until the day I die. I have no desire to consume social media, watch the news, movies, TV shows, or other distractions.

Most things in life are merely distractions, pulling you away from producing. My goal is simple: to be outside, to connect with nature and other humans.

"Life is outside your window."
