

Adventure Is in My Blood

At my core, I am an adventurer. My lust for life and exploration runs through my veins. Each day when I wake up, I'm excited to conquer something new.

Think Without Borders

When you look out your window or up at the sky, think without borders. Think endlessly, with abundance and no limits. You can go wherever you want in this world. All you need is the movement of your physical body and an audacious, courageous attitude to get yourself there.

No Fear

When you have no fear and embrace the chaos headfirst with curiosity, you will float through this world on a feather bed, untouched and unscathed. I have a lust for battle. I do not seek comfort—I'm always looking for new physical challenges. Embrace this, and it's as if anything is possible.

The Future Is Here

Perhaps it's wise to merge with the machine. I enjoy embracing new ways of doing things and creating art. Whether it's shooting with a small compact camera, reviewing my images on an iPad Pro, or even writing this blog post using dictation, the future is here. Merge with the machine. Everything is an upside.

Create More Art

The greatest gift we can leave behind on this earth is the art we make. Consider each new photograph like a child you give birth to. Use art to propagate your voice and to enhance your everyday life. Embrace the spirit of play and walk endlessly, creating as you go.

Abundant Mindset

When you approach photography with an abundant mindset—creating in a flow state without distractions or preconceived notions—you can conquer anything. Don't take life or your photography so seriously. Remember that, in the end, this is for fun.

Create in an Autotelic State

When you set out with your camera, remember you're making photographs for yourself. You're making these photos simply because you're curious about the results.

What will reality manifest to be in a photograph?

This is the question to ask every day before you step outside. Make pictures for the sake of making pictures. Allow yourself to become infatuated with life itself and fuel your lust for the mundane through the way of an autotelic state.
