

Stop Thinking, Start Creating 🎬

What's poppin', people? It's Dante.

Look at this beautiful morning here — dark, gloomy, rainy. And if you're watching this video, this is your message to start creating.

To produce something, to make photographs, to make videos, to start your own YouTube channel. Do something. We live in a modern world with such novel ways to share our perspective, to share our artwork, to create endlessly across this digital landscape — this digital canvas.

My YouTube channel is my canvas.

My website, my blog, my camera — the world in front of me — that's my canvas.

There's so much to see, to explore, to photograph, and to create when you look at life this way.

Stop Thinking and Start Doing

We overthink everything.

We analyze, hesitate, and get stuck in paralysis. But thinking too much is the death of creation. Thinking is for idiots — action is where it's at.

If you want to grow as an artist, you have to limit distractions, stop thinking, and start doing. Especially with photography — you just shoot. Respond to your gut. Follow your curiosity. Trust your intuition. Listen to that inner voice guiding you.

Motivation = Movement

The word motivation comes from the Latin movere — “to move.”

It’s not about waiting for inspiration to strike or some external force pushing you. It’s about you — your physical body moving through the world, making, creating, doing.

Motivation is motion.

Stagnation is death.

Sitting at your LCD screen, wondering what to create, kills momentum. The beauty of creation is that it doesn’t have to be serious — it can be play.

Embrace Imperfection

Don’t plan everything. Don’t contrive it.

Don’t chase perfection — because imperfection is perfection. The world doesn’t need more polished, edited, cut-up, perfect content. The world needs your raw, uncut perspective.

Through creating candidly and spontaneously, you’ll find more joy and more meaning in life.

“An unexamined life is not a life worth living.” — Socrates

By making videos, taking photos, and sharing them, you’re having a dialogue with the world. You’re asking questions. You’re uncovering your unconscious mind and discovering how you feel about life.

Create to Connect

Through sharing your photos and your voice, maybe — just maybe — you'll impact the life of one other human on the other side of the world.
How beautiful is that?

That you can create something here, and someone halfway across the planet can see it, feel it, be moved by it.

Isn't that kind of crazy?
Or am I crazy?
Yeah... that's pretty much it.

Peace.
